

Dr. Purity Ngina is a mathematician, a lecturer at Strathmore institute of Mathematical sciences, a motivational speaker and a wife whom after scoring a B+ in 2007 from Tumutumu girls joined Egerton University for a bachelor's of education science (Mathematics and chemistry). She later pursued her masters in applied Mathematics at the same university after which she joined Strathmore University for a PhD in Biomathematics.

Dr. Purity is the youngest PhD holder in Biomathematics in Kenya. She is also the democracy Trust Fund woman of the year 2018 and the nominee of the newsmaker person of the year 2018. She represented all women in STEM from Kenya in Canada on 25.03.2019. Dr. Purity is very passionate about young people and most importantly girls and Mathematics.